MONDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 3.

BATTLE WITH EVICTORS.—A dispatch from Dublin says: "Lord Clanricarde's evictors Saturday attacked the house of a tenant named Tulley, at Cloncoo, facing the Shannon. A deep trench had been dug around the building by the occupants, and the house had been banked to the roof with clay, stones and slates; trees had also been sunk into the ground parallel with the wall. The victors advanced with a battering ram to break down these obstructions, but were beaten off by the defenders, who fired volleys of stones and poured boiling liquid over their assailants, compelling them to frequently retreat. Some of the evictors, in obedience to orders, tried to effect entrance through the roof. They were hurled into the ditch by the defenders, who captured a number of rifles and an officer's sword. Finally, after an hour and a half of fighting, the police succeeded in taking possession of the house and capturing the occupants. Tenant Tulley was the next to be attacked. Here an equally determined struggle took place, although the evictors were unable to hold out as long as had the defenders at Tulley's house. The eighteen young men who formed the garrison were arrested. A majority of them had severe cuts on their faces, arms and bodies. Three other families were evicted at Dams.".

HUNTING WITH DOGS.—All hounds save the greyhound run entirely by scent. When they come upon the faint scent of a track they will work along it until it grows fresher, and then begin to bay or "give tongue." There is always a correspondence between the baying and the trail. An experienced hunter can tell by the baying not only where the dog is, but by the frequency and confidence of the sound, how fresh the trail is—that is, how close upon his game the dog is. All hound animals have a way of doubling, or running in circles. Hence, if a hunter observes by the baying that his dog is going away from him, he waits patiently, sometimes for minutes, sometimes for hours, until the circle is made, and he hears the dog approaching. Then he is on the alert for a shot, for the game is probably not many rods in advance of the dog. A hound is seldom lost. His nose is his compass. When ever he pleases, he can take up his master's track and find him, or he can retrace his own steps homeward. Dogs do not seem to enjoy those odors that please us. A dog will turn away disappointed and indifferent from the finest of perfumes. Except the scene of those things which he would like to eat, I have never found anything that seemed to delight a dog's sense of smell.—St. Nicholas, for September.
